Six anchors to return to

These are reflective starting points grounded in the placements and major aspects listed on page one. They are invitations for attention, not predictions or guarantees.

01 Begin where the spark is

Your Aries Sun favors direct beginnings. Its trine to Mars links intention with action; notice where clean movement feels more honest than prolonged preparation.

Grounded in: Sun · Sun trine Mars

02 Let comfort become information

Your Taurus Moon sits close to Venus. Notice what becomes clearer when beauty, material ease, and unhurried attention are treated as genuine emotional information rather than decoration.

Grounded in: Moon · Venus · Moon conjunction Venus

03 Give intuition a structure

Mercury in Pisces can begin with impressions. Its trine to Jupiter offers a bridge into a larger frame: write the image first, then name the meaning you can support.

Grounded in: Mercury · Jupiter · Mercury trine Jupiter

04 Choose what can be tended

Venus in Taurus emphasizes durability and sensory presence. The Moon connection makes values easier to recognize through what settles, strains, or asks for patient care.

Grounded in: Venus · Moon · Moon conjunction Venus

05 Act with visible heart

Mars in Leo favors action that can be owned. Its trine to the Sun suggests initiative works best when it expresses a clear center rather than seeking certainty.

Grounded in: Mars · Sun · Sun trine Mars

06 Hold vision against structure

Saturn close to Neptune asks structure and imagination to share a table. The Uranus–Pluto square adds pressure to find a form that can carry deep change honestly.

Reflection, in your own words

1. Where does beginning feel simpler than I have made it?
2. What kind of steadiness helps my body recognize a real yes?
3. What structure could protect imagination without containing it too tightly?
